DONATED BIKES WILL BRING CHRISTMAS JOY (CASANDRA TURNBULL PHOTO)
Giving the gift of wheels this Christmas. Steve from Steve's Recycle Bicycles delivered 10 refurbished, like-new bicycles to the Paris Community Christmas Hamper Program on December 14, continuing his annual tradition of helping ensure local children wake up to a shiny bike under the tree on Christmas morning. Donations have been pouring into the Paris Fairgrounds over the last five days, where more than 100 volunteers are sorting, organizing and packing hampers ahead of distribution day on Dec. 19. Paris north-end expansion wins OLT approval

CASANDRA TURNBULL

Managing Editor

A large residential development proposed for the north end of Paris has cleared a major hurdle after the Ontario Land Tribunal (OLT) issued a written decision approving the project, following a negotiated settlement between the County of Brant and the developer.

The decision, released October 27 and circulated to council through a Friday File on December 5, confirms that the draft plan of subdivision and zoning bylaw amendment for the lands at 184 Pinehurst Road, known locally as Cordon Farm, meet provincial planning policy and fall within the County's settlement boundary. The approval allows the project to move forward subject to a series of conditions related to infrastructure, servicing and phasing.

The developer, MLB Holdings Ltd. (Cedar North Development), had appealed to the OLT in 2025 after council failed to make a decision within the statutory timelines under the Planning Act.

The public first saw plans for the project in December 2022, when Cedar North Development proposed rezoning 121 acres of farmland at Pinehurst Road and Watts Pond Road to allow between 776 and 984 residential units across two phases. The concept envisioned low-, medium- and high-density housing, parkland, stormwater facilities, mixed-use

Preliminary parking study projects need for up to 416 new downtown spaces by 2050, councillors hear

CASANDRA TURNBULL
Managing Editor

County of Brant councillors received a detailed look at long-term parking pressures in downtown Paris on Dec. 9 as staff presented the Preliminary Downtown Paris Parking Needs Assessment, a first step toward determining how much parking the core will need as redevelopment accelerates over the next 25 years.

The assessment, presented by Manager of Corporate Initiatives Halie Gilmore, analyzes current utilization, anticipates future growth, and models four scenarios that forecast the number of additional public parking spaces required through 2050. Even under the status quo, where no residential growth occurs on existing municipal lots, the County would still need to add more than 100 new spaces over the next quarter-century.

“It’s a preliminary model that is based on existing data and feedback from the community to get an understanding of our current condition in downtown Paris and start to understand what demand and supply could look like over the next 25 years,” Gilmore told councillors at the December 8th Administration and Operations meeting.

She emphasized that the document is not a final strategy but an evolving foundation that will be updated as the County refines forecasts, gathers more data, and hears from the public. “It’s important to realize this is preliminary and things are changing and evolving – so it can be updated over time, as feedback is submitted from the community,” she said

According to the assessment, downtown Paris has 420 public parking spaces, 286 in lots and 117 on-street, with average lot utilization around 75 per cent, below the industry threshold of 85 per cent. But the average masks peak pressures: lots closest to the commercial core, offering 24-hour parking, regularly operate near capacity.

Data and community feedback “show our current parking is nearing capacity,” Gilmore said, noting high demand in lots closest to Grand River Street North and increasing strain from tourism, seasonal events, and commercial activity.

The reconstruction of Grand River Street North, which replaced angled parking with parallel, resulted in the loss of 34 on-street spaces, though the construction of Lot 11 on the former OPP site at Mechanic and Broadway St offset that, resulting in a net gain of 45 spaces since 2022.

The report models four growth scenarios, forecasting the number of additional public parking spaces required by 2050:

- Status quo (no residential growth): 107 spaces
- Low growth (150 new units): 283 spaces
- Medium growth (225 units): 323 spaces
- High growth (300 units): 416 spaces

These projections reflect not only increasing population and tourism, but also the likelihood that municipal lots could be redeveloped to accommodate growth, removing between 34 and 186 public spaces depending on the scale of development. The assessment notes that densification is positive for the community and economy, but it requires a strategy to maintain and expand parking supply.

Providing adequate public parking is key in our downtown core, so we need to make sure we are providing adequate parking, and we are preserving what we have, Gilmore stated.

Councillors pressed for clarity on how and when residents and downtown business owners will be consulted.

“This is an important first step in the parking conversation,” Gilmore said, noting that the County’s downtown liaison “is positioned to have conversations with folks in the new year,” noting it would be a very forward-focused discussion asking what people want to see in the future, as opposed to what worked in the past.

Paris Coun. Steve Howes said residents need the key points from the report distilled: “I’m wondering if our communications department will condense these 35 pages into some key bullets,” also noting the importance of highlighting that the county has gained 45 spaces of the last few years, despite losing spaces when angle parking was removed.

Paris Coun. John Bell said the report should acknowledge that people may be willing to walk a few extra minutes, pointing to large public lots at Syl Apps Community Centre, Penman’s Pass and Lions Park.

Bell also acknowledged the importance of making plans to make sure parking is adequate before continuing to approve development, saying there must be a sensible timeline to executing growth.

Bell also suggested it may be time to tell the community definitively that the long-debated parking structure at the Council Chambers lot “is not going to happen.”

Ward 1 Coun. Jennifer Kyle supported expanding the definition of available parking to include nearby public lots but noted that “Lions Park for example only has about 50 spaces that are only accessible for half the year,” she said, citing that the gates at Lions Park were closed for Jingle Bell Night, so seasonal parking and limitations must be considered.

Councillors also raised the issue of 90+ County staff who currently park downtown. Off-site staff parking or relocating office space could reduce demand, some suggested, though Ward 5 Coun. David Miller cautioned that if County offices are relocated, whatever replaces them downtown will also require parking

Council voted to receive the assessment and directed staff to:

- Consult with the BIA, downtown property owners, residents, and businesses.
- Enumerate specific parking needs for staff, customers, and residents.
- Investigate additional parking locations and potential partnerships with private lot owners; and

- Report back with options for addressing capacity challenges.

The findings will inform the 2026 update of the Downtown Paris Master Plan, and a forthcoming zoning review intended to support residential intensification.

North Cedar subdivision clears OLT, paving way for major north-end expansion blocks and a commercial area.

At the time, county planning staff cautioned that wastewater capacity and water servicing upgrades would be required before any new subdivision in that area could proceed, work then estimated to take 5-7 years to complete.

The developer signaled early that approximately 50 per cent of future residents would occupy affordable or attainable forms of housing, including apartments, stacked townhouses and units to be built by Habitat for Humanity.

The OLT decision followed a written settlement hearing, where expert testimony from the applicant and minutes of settlement were reviewed by Tribunal member Eric S. Crowe. According to the County's summary, Member Crowe found that the zoning amendment and draft plan of subdivision were consistent with the Provincial Policy Statement 2024 and aligned with local planning objectives.

Under the order, the appeal was allowed in part, permitting the subdivision to advance once all draft conditions are satisfied. A school block, identified as Block 164 in Phase 1A, must be secured as part of the approvals. Draft plan conditions related to water, wastewater and emergency access must be met before registration.

A detailed phasing schedule sets maximum unit counts per stage, beginning with 218 units in Phase 1A, followed by additional stages contingent on available servicing capacity.

The project has drawn strong public reaction, particularly regarding traffic congestion and servicing limits in north Paris. Councillor Steve Howes said he understands residents' mixed feelings.

"As someone who has lived here almost 60 years, I personally share in the frustration at the idea of 900+ additional homes at the north end of Paris," he wrote when sharing news of the settlement. "That said, I have to acknowledge that this development will, over time, deliver some housing types that we need AND... allows land for a new elementary school that we absolutely need."

Howes emphasized that the subdivision will be built over several years, paced by required infrastructure upgrades.

Traffic concerns also resurfaced, with many residents referencing a long-debated bypass bridge connecting Watts Pond Road to Green Lane. Councillor Lukas Oakley noted he and other Paris councillors, Howes, John Bell and John Peirce, previously supported advancing the Environmental Assessment for the bypass under the 2022 Transportation Master Plan, but the proposal was defeated 7-4, putting the issue to bed during this term of council.

Oakley encouraged residents to treat north-end transportation planning as an election issue in 2026.

According to figures published by the developer on its website the project is expected to include:

- 151 low-density units
- 72 townhomes
- 263 medium-density units
- 244 high-density units
- 40 mixed-use residential units
- 193 mixed-use buildings

Shortly after the tribunal ruling, the historic farmhouse on the property was removed through a controlled burn with the County's fire department.

The OLT ruling does not authorize immediate construction. The County must still confirm available water and wastewater capacity before each phase proceeds, and the developer must meet all technical conditions, including stormwater management, road connections, and emergency access requirements. Planning staff will also bring future subdivision agreements and phase-by-phase registrations back to Council as required.

The recent announcement that one of my favourite food joints in town is closing really hit home just how important it is that we support small businesses.

La Trenza Taco announced on social media late last week that it will close as of Dec. 21. For many regulars, it felt personal — because it was.

Carolina and Carlos, the heart behind La Trenza Taco, shared a message filled with gratitude and pride.

“Running our small business and sharing our passion for food has been the best journey,” they wrote. “We have not only met the absolute best people but also felt a sense of belonging in our community for the first time as immigrants in Canada after 20 years. We close this chapter with our hearts full of gratitude and love.”

They went on to thank The Paris Wincey Mills Co., fellow vendors and suppliers, and, most importantly, their customers — the people who kept them motivated to share their food with pride.

That message says a lot about what small businesses really are. They are not just storefronts or menus. They are families, risks taken, long hours worked and, often, a deep desire to belong and contribute to a community.

The decision to close did not come from a lack of love for what they did, nor from a lack of loyal customers. Rising food and supply costs, combined with the inevitable lull during off-season months, all led to a heartbreaking — but very real — business decision. It’s hard to run a small business. It’s even harder to run one in a small town.

And it’s especially difficult when business booms are seasonal. Anyone who has tried La Trenza Taco knows the food is outstanding. They could easily make diners happy in a full-scale restaurant. But expansion brings higher rent, staffing costs and overhead — a vicious cycle many small operators simply can’t afford to enter.

And they are far from alone.

Statistics Canada data from early to mid-2025 shows that business closures continue to be a reality across the country. Monthly closure rates hovered between 4.7 and 5.0 per cent of active businesses, roughly matching opening rates and keeping overall numbers stable. But that stability masks what’s happening on the ground.

Retail trade, accommodation and food services, and professional, scientific and technical services were among the sectors seeing the largest decreases in active businesses due to closures. While business insolvency filings declined in the second quarter of 2025 compared to last year, they remain above pre-pandemic levels — a clear sign that strain continues, even if the crisis headlines have faded.

All of that brings us to now.

We are in the midst of the busiest shopping season of the year. There is no better time to make a conscious effort to support local businesses. Buy Christmas gifts and stocking stuffers from local merchants. Eat locally. Shop locally. Share posts. Tell friends. Show up.

Big box stores won’t miss our presence. But Carolina and Carlos will. So will the friendly faces downtown Paris and across the County of Brant who open their doors every day hoping it’s enough to keep the lights on.

And while you still can, stop by Wincey Mills. Enjoy one last taco. Wish Carolina and Carlos well in their future endeavours. Thank them for bringing the flavours of Mexico — and a sense of community — to Paris. Grab a dog treat for your furry family member, pick up some fresh meat from the butchers, pair that meat with fresh produce from Van Laeken Farms, grab some dessert, a coffee, or a grilled cheese. Wincey Mills has a lot to offer. And when your bag is full venture to Grand River Street N and see what treasures await you.

Because every time a small business closes, we lose more than a place to shop or eat. We lose a story, a dream and a little piece of what makes our town feel like home.

Brant wary of province's conservation authority shakeup

CASANDRA TURNBULL

Managing Editor

The Ontario government's plan to dramatically consolidate the province's 36 conservation authorities into seven regional bodies has prompted caution from County of Brant officials, who say the proposed restructuring could weaken local expertise, dilute municipal representation, and complicate watershed management efforts.

At the December 9 Administration and Operations Committee meeting, councillors received a detailed staff report outlining the province's proposal and its potential impacts. The province is seeking input through an Environmental Registry posting as it prepares legislation for spring 2026. The restructuring would not take effect until after the October 2026 municipal election.

The County's report provides both background on the province's approach, divided into two phases, and an analysis of risks and opportunities associated with the consolidation. Councillors voted unanimously to support the report, with one amendment correcting wording in the accompanying resolution.

The first phase, already approved through Bill 68, will establish the Ontario Provincial Conservation Agency (OPCA), a new centralized body empowered to issue binding directives, set province-wide standards, and oversee conservation authorities. No public consultation was sought for this component, staff noted.

The second phase proposes merging existing authorities into seven regional entities aligned with major watershed systems. Under the draft boundaries, Brant would be absorbed into the proposed Lake Erie Regional Conservation Authority, an amalgamation encompassing 81 municipalities from Kitchener-Waterloo to Windsor, far larger than the current Grand River and Long Point systems.

The staff analysis raises several concerns, including the potential loss of localized ecological expertise that supports emergency management, flood mapping, and development review. The Grand River Conservation Authority and Long Point Region Conservation Authority currently work closely with County departments on projects such as flood zone mapping, municipal drains, and source-water protection, partnerships that could be strained by a larger, more centralized structure.

Staff also noted risks of:

- Reduced municipal influence under a much larger board,
- Slower permitting and enforcement response times,
- Uncertainty around future funding models, and
- Possible impacts on non-mandatory programs such as the Rural Water Quality Capital Grants Program and the Brant-Brantford Children's Water Festival.

"The proposed boundaries are expansive and encompass diverse ecosystems," the report states. "Effective watershed management requires localized knowledge... Consolidation could weaken protections against flooding and erosion, particularly as climate change and extreme weather events demand strong local expertise."

Staff acknowledged the province's intent to modernize permitting, standardize practices, and improve consistency.

Larger regional authorities could also distribute technical resources more equitably among municipalities. But they stressed that these benefits hinge on how the consolidation is implemented.

To reduce risks, the County supports the GRCA's recommendation that any new structure mirror existing source-water protection regions, creating smaller regional authorities rather than the sweeping proposed mergers.

During committee discussion, Coun. Robert Chambers praised the staff report as "very comprehensive and excellent," adding that GRCA board members would likely agree. However, he flagged an inaccuracy in the draft resolution stating that "municipalities have governed their respective conservation authorities for decades."

"Municipalities have never governed their conservation authorities ever; they are governed by the boards of conservation authorities," Chambers said. The committee unanimously supported his amendment, after which he endorsed the full staff analysis.

Council is expected to submit the County's feedback, along with any additional comments, to the province before the December 22 deadline. The government has signalled further consultation before a final model is implemented.

In the meantime, conservation authorities will continue to operate under existing boundaries and mandates while municipalities await clarity on governance models, funding formulas, and how local priorities will be protected in a vastly expanded regional structure.

Task Force issues formal call for land for future Brantford-Brant hospital

MEDIA RELEASE

The independent task force overseeing the site identification process for a new Brant Community Healthcare System (BCHS) hospital has issued a formal call for land, inviting property owners to submit potential sites for consideration.

The call was announced on December 5th, opening a two-stage submission process that will determine where the new regional hospital serving Brantford, Brant County, Six Nations of the Grand River, the Mississaugas of the Credit First Nation and surrounding communities will be built.

Landowners interested in having their properties evaluated must submit a Stage 1 proposal through the BCHS Bidding portal before February 10, 2026 at 3 p.m. Sites meeting all mandatory criteria will move to Stage 2, where they will be scored against a broader set of evaluation measures.

"We're asking landowners across Brantford-Brant who have sites that meet the criteria to put forward their sites for consideration," said Don Shilton, chair of the task force. "The community has helped us define what matters most, and now we're ready to find the site that will serve our region for generations to come."

The criteria were finalized following a month-long consultation in September that invited input from residents, health-care staff, local organizations, municipal partners, subject-matter experts and Indigenous communities. Feedback gathered during that process helped shape the measures that will be used to assess each site.

A recommendation on a preferred location is expected to be brought to the BCHS board in spring 2026.

The new hospital is one component of the Reimagine BCHS initiative, which aims to modernize local health-care infrastructure and address the needs of one of the fastest-growing regions in southwestern Ontario.

More information on the site identification process and project updates is available at reimaginebchs.ca.

The Santa who watches over Paris

This story originally ran in December 2024, but its message of community, tradition and holiday cheer is too special - and too uniquely Paris - not to share again.

CASANDRA TURNBULL

Managing Editor

High above the treeline at night stands a Santa shining bright, bringing the town seasonal delight and guiding folks with his holiday light.

Perched high within a 90-foot-tall evergreen overlooking King Edward Street, Santa Claus shines for all to see. If you're new to town or just didn't notice before, this traditional decoration brings joy to so many residents each holiday season. In fact, it has overlooked the town for more than 35 years.

When the tradition looked to be in jeopardy in 2024, one brave soul stepped up — and up and up and up — to make sure the Christmas custom would live on.

The story dates back to the 1990s — perhaps earlier — when Michael and Benita Vlasic, full of Christmas spirit, placed the custom-made Santa in what would become its permanent home: an evergreen tree at 61

King Edward St.

"My dad is a jack of all trades. He's a maintenance millwright by trade. I don't think there is anything he can't fix or modify. He loves Christmas. To him Christmas is more about making memories and happy times than it is about the gifts," said Michelle Sass, sharing the story behind the famous decoration that has very much become a part of Paris' fabric. Each year Michael climbed up that tree, to change the bulb and light Santa, a somewhat unofficial sign that Christmas is near. As the years passed, the task became more difficult to manage and this year Michelle said her father was unable to make the climb. She thought it might be an end of an era until last year when her brother Eric decided to brave the climb. Armed with a safety harness and a whole lot of guts, Eric followed in his father's footsteps and saved Christmas! That may be a bit of an exaggeration, but the deed did not go unnoticed.

When Michelle announced Santa's return on social media last year, a flood of comments soon followed.

"Thank-you for the joy this has brought to our family and the community over many, many years," commented Aileen Costigan.

"Thank-you so much for doing this. It is iconic in our town and my kids look for Santa every time we pass by," said Jessica Bartlett-Howells.

Terri Thompson shared, "I noticed last night that Santa was lit up! The Christmas season is here!"

And this year was no exception. As soon as Santa's light was on, folks were discussing the tradition, some wondering the story, others happily sharing the history. It is guaranteed to start a discussion each December.

Michelle hopes Santa will continue to bring joy to the town, a shining light and perfect way to keep Michael and Benita's Christmas spirit alive.

Do you spot Santa Claus at the top of this 90-foot evergreen tree? He lives on King Edward Street but overlooks the entire town — and is quite the talk of the town each December.

Enbridge partners with Fire Department, donates life saving fire and carbon monoxide detectors

CASANDRA TURNBULL

Managing Editor

The County of Brant Fire Department is partnering with Enbridge Gas Ontario and the Fire Marshal's Public Fire Safety Council to improve home safety and reduce fire- and carbon monoxide-related deaths to zero.

The collaboration was announced Dec. 10 and includes the distribution of combination smoke and carbon monoxide alarms through Safe Community Project Zero, a province-wide public education campaign.

As part of the initiative, the County of Brant Fire Department received 264 combination smoke and carbon monoxide alarms. The broader campaign will provide more than 14,200 alarms to residents in 75 communities across Ontario.

This year, Enbridge Gas invested $450,000 in Safe Community Project Zero. Over the past 17 years, the program has supplied more than 115,000 alarms to Ontario fire departments.

When properly installed and maintained, combination smoke and carbon monoxide alarms provide early warning to allow occupants to safely escape a house fire or carbon monoxide exposure. Carbon monoxide is a toxic, odourless gas produced by the incomplete combustion of common fuels.

"Carbon monoxide alarms play a vital role as a second line of defence against this invisible threat, often called 'the silent killer'," says Desirée Swance, Advisor, Municipal and Stakeholder Engagement, Enbridge Gas. "Proper maintenance of fuel-burning appliances is the most effective way to prevent carbon monoxide exposure. We're proud to support our communities by raising awareness and helping Ontarians take simple, proactive steps to stay safe in their homes."

"Each day, fire departments focus their efforts on educating the public about the importance of having working smoke and carbon monoxide alarms in their home. The objective of Safe Community Project Zero, is to deliver these alarms to areas where they are needed most," says

Jon Pegg, Ontario Fire Marshal and Chair of the FMPFSC. "It is a program that not only helps fire departments raise awareness about the legal requirement to have working smoke and carbon monoxide alarms installed in all Ontario homes, but also reinforces the critical role they play in saving lives."

"Having the right safety tools in place can save lives, and this contribution helps us get them where they're needed most," says Darren Watson, Fire Chief for the County of Brant. "It's a meaningful step toward reducing preventable emergencies in our community and we are so grateful."

"The Safe Community Project Zero campaign aims to help our most vulnerable residents receive free smoke and CO alarms which can help save lives," says MPP Will Bouma, Brantford-Brant. "Through community partnerships and collaboration, this program will help raise awareness for the importance of having working smoke and CO alarms in homes. With the crucial efforts made through this campaign and our community partners, I believe that tragic fire and carbon monoxide related deaths can be reduced."

The County of Brant Fire Department operates eight stations across the county, providing fire prevention, public education and emergency response services supported by a fleet that includes pumpers, tankers, an aerial truck, rescue boats and ATVs.

The Fire Marshal's Public Fire Safety Council was established in 1993 and works to promote fire prevention and public education through partnerships and sponsorships across Ontario.

Enbridge Gas Ontario is Canada's largest natural gas storage, transmission and distribution company, delivering energy to more than four million customers across the province.

HISTORIC PARIS

PARIS PAST: The rise and fall of King's Ward park's "Christmas Island"

By Chris Whelan

Paris, Ontario has long been a town where community spirit shines brightly—quite literally, during the holiday season. A look back at the years following 1965 reveals the inspiring, though ultimately temporary, legacy of the Paris Beautification Society and its most ambitious project: the "Christmas Island" in King's Ward Park.

The seeds of the Paris Beautification Society were sown in May 1965, when Mayor Melvin Sharpe issued a town-wide invitation to form a citizen's committee. The initial goal was focused: to organize a beautification program for the town's upcoming centennial year.

Out of a series of meetings emerged an executive led by President Oliver Mulholland. Driven by a desire for a "more permanent and long-range program," the group officially became the Paris Beautification Society. They swiftly secured town council support and launched their first project—a tulip planting program—raising funds by selling memberships at the Paris Fall Fair, which helped purchase 1,000 bulbs for three flower beds.

It was at a September meeting that the idea for a spectacular holiday display was conceived. With an advance on their 1966 grant, the Society decided to create a permanent feature: "Christmas Island."

The committee immediately got to work, purchasing more than $600 worth of used Christmas decoration material from the city of Kitchener (aided by a $500 town council grant). The centerpiece of the attraction was a nativity scene, built by the boys of the Paris District High School industrial arts classes under the supervision of teacher Foster Scott.

The inaugural Christmas Island proved to be an instant hit. On Friday night of the 1965 Santa Claus Parade, which was sponsored by the new Society and featured the Paris Citizen's Band and several floats, Santa himself distributed candy to the children right at the newly established "Christmas Island."

The enthusiasm of the Society spurred a town-wide lighting renaissance. In 1966, while the Christmas Island was enlarged and maintained by the committee, residents across Paris—from Grand River Street North to the Capron Survey and Highbury Heights—began trying to outdo their neighbours in lighting arrangements as part of the Society's home lighting contest. The town had become "increasingly brighter."

The success continued into 1967 when the Society partnered with the Penman's Employees Recreation Association (PERA) for the annual Santa Claus Parade. The parade, featuring cash prizes for the best-decorated floats, wound its way through the streets and culminated at the Christmas Island in King's Ward Park, across from Central School.

However, by November 1968, the massive undertaking began to show strain. President Oliver Mulholland noted that the Society's active membership had dwindled to about six workers, making the erection of the complex display—which required about 12 people—a major challenge.

Mulholland stressed the importance of their work: "The town isn't big enough to support a park program, so it has to rely on civic programs." Thankfully, the Paris Lions Club and the Jaycees stepped in to offer assistance, saving the popular display for one more year.

Despite the tireless efforts and community praise, the difficulty in maintaining the momentum proved too much. The last article found about the project, dated December 9, 1969, announced the cancellation of the Christmas Island display.

"We are short on membership," Mulholland stated, "or we would have had it on the go before now." He also noted the significant amount of repair needed for the equipment. The Christmas Island—a beloved Yuletide attraction for four years, conceived to celebrate Canada's centennial and sustained by pure civic pride—was no more. Though the lights dimmed on this particular project, the story of the Paris Beautification Society remains a powerful reminder of how a few committed citizens can successfully transform a town, proving that community effort is the best kind of decoration.

Paris Horticultural Society honoured for community impact

The Paris Horticultural Society was honoured at the County of Brant's 2025 Volunteer Recognition Ceremony on December 5 at the Warren Group Cainsville Community Centre. The society received a Community Impact Award for its innovative, collaborative contributions that enrich the community. Several members also earned individual Community Leader Awards in recognition of their mentorship and volunteer service. Pictured are award recipients Dave Collins, Brenda Hunt, Dorothy Lanyi, Bob Hasler and Pat Hasler-Watts. And just one example of the group's impact can be seen in the festive decorations throughout downtown Paris, they are the volunteers behind the beautiful planters residents enjoy each season. County of Brant celebrates volunteers at 3rd Annual Recognition Ceremony

MEDIA RELEASE

The County of Brant celebrated the contributions of local volunteers on Friday, December 5, during its third annual Volunteer Recognition Ceremony at the TF Warren Group Cainsville Community Centre. This year's event recognized 57 individual volunteers along with five community groups for their service.

"Volunteers bring so much to Brant, and I cannot begin to express how grateful and lucky we are to have the support of the individuals and organizations that donate their time in our communities," said County of Brant Mayor David Bailey. "Thank you for your commitment and for making a difference in Brant."

For the third consecutive year, the event took place on International Volunteer Day, providing an opportunity for the County of Brant to celebrate both individuals and groups in the community. Residents were encouraged to nominate an individual, group, committee or club that has contributed in a meaningful way to the County.

Nominations were submitted for the following categories: Community Leader (individual) and Community Impact (group). Awards were also presented to 37 Simply Grand Volunteers, recognizing individual citizens who have dedicated 15 or more years to a longstanding community group or service club.

Paris Titans swept at home despite special-teams scoring

JIM BROWN

Sports Correspondent

The Paris Titans were at home for a pair of Provincial Junior C Hockey League contests on the weekend. Home ice did not prove to be beneficial as they lost both games. The only similarity was that the visiting team scored six goals.

Three first period goals Friday evening carried the visiting Hespeler Shamrocks to a 6-2 decision over the Titans. The Shamrocks held a 5-1 advantage after 40 minutes. Each team added a goal in the final period.

Cohen Alexander opened the scoring at 3:46, followed by Evan Silveira at 6:43 and Ethan McKay at 13:55.

Trevor McDowell put the Titans on the board at 10:21 of the second period on the power play, with assists being earned by Ryan Gardiner -O'Keefe and Spencer Edwards.

Liam Nelson made it 41 with the man advantage, at 14:13 and Silveira, with his second of the night, at 19:11 made it 5-1.

Langdon McGrath made it 6-1 at 1:15 of the third period on the power play and Clark Dunford tallied the Titan's second goal at 10:05.

Colton Thomson turned aside 16 of 22 shots he faced and Nolen Carriere made 25 saves.

The next night, following a scoreless first period Saturday evening against the Woodstock Navy Vets, the Titans opened the scoring at 6:17 of the second period as Kayden Blacquiere scored on the power play, with help from Jake Semiwolos and Austin Christian.

Just 45 seconds later Tate McKenna scored for the Navy Vets to even the count. McKenna netted his second of the game at 14:41 to give Woodstock a 2-1 lead.

Owen Ireton scored as

1:27 of the third period two give the visitors 3-1 advantage. Charley Barnes made it 4-1 at 3:18 and made it 5-1 at 7:31 with the man advantage.

Just 27 seconds later. Cole Kersey scored an unassisted marker to make the discord 5-2. Austin Christian made it 5-3 at 15:21 with Josh Russell getting the assist. Cooper Vickerman made the score 6-3 at 18:22. Ethan Madden stopped 36 of 42 shots he faced while Tyler Bouk turned aside 41 of 44 shots directed at him.

Paris was 1-for-6 with the man advantage while Woodstock was 1-for-4 on the power play.

There has been a coaching change for the Titans.

Coach Gordy Christian said they got off to a good start in the game. "We had a good first period in which we had good scoring opportunities," he said.

The coach noted they played about 54 minutes of good hockey. Woodstock was able to take advantage of the six minutes when the Titans played poorly.

"I believe this team can win," he said. "With the coaching change the philosophy of the team will change." He also noted that Cole Kersey had a strong game for Titans, scoring the team's second goal on a wrap-around, adding he goes out for each shift and plays hard.

Paris Thunder bring home silver after thrilling Fun 3 tournament run

The Paris Ringette Association's Fun 3 squad turned heads in St. Catharines during their Nov. 21-23 tournament, delivering a weekend packed with grit, goals and edge-of-your-seat action. The team opened with a 4-3 nail-biter against the St. Marys Snipers before roaring back with a dominant 7-0 shutout over the Guelph Predators. Paris carried that momentum into their final round-robin match, edging out the Waterloo Wildfire 4-2 to earn a well-deserved berth in the championship game — and a rematch with St. Marys. Despite a determined full-team effort in a hard-fought final, Paris fell 10-5 but skated home proudly with silver medals and plenty of momentum heading into their next adventure: the Waterloo tournament, Jan. 9-11. Members of the Fun 3 team include: Quinn Hodgson, Alexandra Hall, Anna Kip, Margaret Briggs, Lacey Axisa, Skylar Morris, Blakely Berkmortel, Celia Donn, Evie Whittaker, Adaline Rowntree (and absent from photo) Grace Amy.

Rachel Lunam's unstoppable Ironman journey

SCOOP STEWART

Paris Independent Columnist

Paris native Rachel Lunam - Sweeney, 56, is no stranger to setting high goals and tackling them head-on. As the eldest of four children and mother to five (Mandie, Amber, Denny, Riley, and Molly), this self-proclaimed Type A, "go big or go home" athlete has completed 10 full Ironman triathlons, all while secretly battling a debilitating and rare vascular condition. Her incredible journey culminates in a historic comeback at the 2025 Ironman Canada in Ottawa, exactly one year after lifesaving, reconstructive surgery.

Born and raised in Paris, Lunam always led an active lifestyle. Following success in bike racing, a move to triathlon felt like a "natural progression." Her first season in 2012 proved she was a natural, securing the Multisport Canada Overall Series award after winning the short-course triathlon in Coburg and achieving three other top four finishes.

"After my first season of short course races in 2012, I set my goals high for the following season. Admittedly, most athletes take a longer/slower build to the full Ironman distance (usually years); but I tend to have the 'go big or go home' mentality lol."

The goal she set was the Ironman—a grueling full-distance triathlon consisting of a 3.8 km swim / 180 km bike / 42.2 km run, which must be completed in under 17 hours. After 12 months of training, she self-coached her way to the finish line of her first Ironman in Mont Tremblant, Quebec (2013).

Just months before her first Ironman, Lunam experienced the initial symptoms of claudication—muscle pain caused by a lack of oxygen—in her right calf. Initially attributing the pain to the sheer training volume, she persevered. However, the symptoms spread over the next decade, appearing in both calves while running and even in her quadriceps while cycling. The pain was so debilitating it forced her to step away from training with her friends and leave her role as a founding board member of the Brant Cycling Club.

For years, she sought answers, enduring a misdiagnosis of chronic compartment syndrome and spending "thousands of dollars and hundreds of hours" on treatments like physical therapy, acupuncture, and massage. Nothing worked. Lunam continued to race the longer, slower endurance events, finding the symptoms marginally more manageable, completing a remarkable roster of Ironman events:

2015: Niagara Falls Barrelman & Ironman Lake Placid, NY (Coached by Jeff Kehler)

- 2017: Ironman Mont Tremblant & Niagara Falls Barrelman (Coached by Angela Quick)
- 2018: Ironman Chattanooga, TN (Coached by Angela Quick)
- 2019: Ironman Cozumel, Mexico (Coached by Angela Quick)
- 2021: Ironman Chattanooga, TN & Ironman Arizona (Coached by Angela Quick)
- 2022: Ironman Cozumel, Mexico (Self-Coached)
- 2023: Ironman Chattanooga, TN (Self-Coached)

The breaking point came after the exceptionally painful Ironman Chattanooga in September 2023. Weeks later, she hit a wall, unable to walk more than 100 meters without severe claudication pain extending from hips to toes.

A vascular ultrasound, ordered to rule out peripheral artery disease (which her mother suffers from), revealed a shocking truth: a complete occlusion of both external iliac arteries. After Googling her symptoms, Lunam discovered an article about External Iliac Artery Endofibrosis (EIAE), or "cyclist's iliac syndrome," a rare disease primarily found in young, elite male athletes. EIAE is not caused by plaque but by the thickening and fibrosis of the artery wall, believed to be triggered by the hyper-flexed hip position in cycling.

Rachel at the athlete village of Ironman Ottawa

Referred to one of the few Canadian specialists, Dr. Prasad Jetty at the Ottawa Civic Hospital, Lunam's diagnosis was confirmed. Her case was unlike any he had seen: the disease had affected both sides bilaterally, and the entire length of both arteries were completely occluded. Dr. Jetty admitted he had "absolutely no idea" how she had completed an Ironman.

On July 24, 2024, Lunam underwent a high-risk, 6-hour surgery—a complete aortobifemoral bypass. Surgeons replaced the full length of her diseased iliac arteries with synthetic dacron arteries, a procedure that came with a 10% risk of amputation, paralysis, or death.

Released from the hospital on August 3, 2024, Lunam immediately set her sights on the inaugural Ironman Canada in Ottawa scheduled for August 3, 2025—exactly 365 days post-op. Despite acute nerve trauma in her right leg and months of painful setbacks, she accomplished her goal.

"Nothing will ever replace the first time I rode my bike or laced up my running shoes and could exercise again pain-free!!... Having my family and friends at that finish line was the best feeling in the entire world."

With 10 Ironmans completed, Lunam is considering her long-term goal of 12 to qualify for the Kona World Championships Legacy program, while remaining mindful of her health. However, her new, pain-free body is already tackling new frontiers.

She recently participated in her first 10km trail running race and has been given the green light by Dr. Jetty to sign up for a 50 km ultra trail running race in Tennessee next November. She also has a 20 km swimming race around the island of Key West on her radar.

Lunam is now dedicating herself to advocacy, educating health professionals on EIAE to ensure other young, healthy athletes don't suffer the same decade-long diagnostic delay. Her message aligns with her ambassadorship for "Rent Rich Threads": "Paying dues and Reaping rewards."

"This life is rented and we pay our dues in discipline, patience, resilience and hard work when no one is watching. There are no shortcuts and no handouts; and the rewards are earned through sweat, grit and pure determination."

Rachel Lunam's triumph is a testament to determination, family support, and the enduring strength of the human spirit. She is a true Paris sports hero.

*Always a pleasure,
Scoop Stewart*

Panthers stay competitive in hockey, basketball and volleyball

GEORGE LE GRESLEY
Sports Correspondent

Girls Hockey
The Panthers continued their winning streak by defeating the St John's Eagles 3-1. On Wednesday, the Panthers took their first loss of the year, losing 4-1 to Assumption College. Reagan Charter was the lone scorer for Paris.

Boys Hockey
The Panthers took a 4-3 loss to the St John's Eagles, their first loss of the year. Cohen Vanderhook scored two goals, and Ryker Hockman scored the third goal.

Boys Basketball
The teams travelled to Pauline Johnson last Tuesday, with the Juniors suffering a 67-53 loss. Leading scorers for the Panthers were Blake Cruickshank, Rex Savage, and Sawyer Mead. Meanwhile, the Seniors won their game 70-66. Leading Panther scorers were Canaan Sherbino, Eoin Wright and Nathan Brewster.

Last Thursday, the Panthers played North Park at home, with the Juniors taking a loss. Leading scorers for the Paris side were Blake Cruickshank, Rex Savage, and Eesa Ansary. Later, the Seniors won their second consecutive game, defeating the Trojans 70-62.

Girls Volleyball
Last Tuesday, the Panthers hosted the Pauline Johnson teams and the Juniors lost a close one, three games to 2. They dropped the first two games of the match but came back to win the next two, tying the match at two games each, before losing the tie-break 15-12.

The Senior side earned its first win of the year, defeating PJ 3-1. The girls have great potential, and this win should get them on a positive trajectory.

On Thursday, the Juniors played the Trojans and won their first game of the year by a score of 3 games to 2. Meanwhile, the Trojans shut out the Panthers 3 games to 0.

Birthday bullseyes light up Paris Legion Women's Dart League night

The atmosphere was energetic at the Paris Legion Women's Dart League this week, with the league celebrating a memorable birthday performance that was nothing short of a spectacle.

Birthday girl Patti led the charge, turning her special day into a dominant display at the boards. She showcased remarkable consistency and poise, successfully doubling out in four of her five games and punctuating her night with a well-earned bullseye.

The competition was fierce, with several players stepping up to hit critical doubles and high scores. A total of ten other players secured key doubles throughout the evening: Gail, Kris (aka Booner), Debi P, Bryanna, Cynthia, Arlene, Nancy, Liz, Kim, and Jennifer. Gail and Kris (Booner), and Debi P all doubled out twice this night.

The standout performance belonged to Jennifer, who not only doubled out for her team's pivotal victory, but also threw the highest score of the night: an amazing 134! Close behind was Nancy, who impressed the crowd with a powerful throw of 132!

Next week is the Christmas celebration for the league and we can't wait to see the seasonal attire and treats for all to enjoy!

Paris duo takes over Bulldogs duties while Cook works world juniors

GEORGE LE GRESLEY
Sports Correspondent

For several years, the Brantford Bulldogs Equipment Manager, Chris Cook, has travelled to the World Junior Hockey Championships as the team's equipment manager, this time to Minnesota. Taking over his duties during this time will be Paris' own Dave Curtin, currently with the Bulldogs, and Doug Green, currently with the Paris Titans. Curtin has been involved with Paris hockey for many years, starting with the Wolfpack, being named the "best Junior hockey equipment manager" by the Mounties owner, Todd Wood, with the Titans, and now primarily with the Bulldogs as the assistant equipment manager. Assisting Dave will be Doug Green, who started in Junior hockey with the Mounties and is now the current Paris Titan equipment manager. Good luck Davey and Greener, especially on those road trips riding on the bus!

GUESS WHO?

Drafted 199th overall in 2000, I went from underdog to GOAT. With seven Super Bowl rings, I've led unforgettable comebacks and shattered countless NFL records. County supports Festive R.I.D.E. program ahead of provincial grant announcement

CASANDRA TURNBULL

Managing Editor

The County of Brant will once again back the Ontario Provincial Police's Festive R.I.D.E. program, approving funding for a paid-duty contract even though provincial grant allocations for 2025-26 have not yet been announced.

At last Tuesday's Administration and Operations Committee meeting, councillors received a staff report recommending that the County authorize the contract in advance, as it has in previous years. The annual Reduce Impaired Driving Everywhere (R.I.D.E.) campaign is a long-standing holiday initiative aimed at removing impaired drivers from roads while increasing police visibility and public education.

According to the report, the program is expected to cost approximately $15,000, an amount historically covered through the province's Festive R.I.D.E. grant. The County has received funding for the initiative in each of the last three years. Should the province not approve the 2025-26 application, staff note the cost can be absorbed through the OPP policing budget without impacting the overall tax levy.

In a letter to the County dated Dec. 2,

Brant County OPP said the Ministry of the Solicitor General has not yet released the call for applications, but detachments anticipate hearing about funding allocations "in the coming weeks." The detachment requested approval to proceed with the paid-duty contract in advance, noting that additional R.I.D.E. patrols are a "critical component in ensuring the safety of our community members during the holiday season."

Staff also recommended that beginning next year, the Chief Administrative Officer be authorized to approve the program annually as long as it continues to be fully funded by the province after year-end reporting. The timing of provincial announcements, the report notes, often falls after the start of holiday enforcement.

The committee endorsed the recommendation, sending it forward for final approval by council.

On November 20, 2025, Brant County OPP officially kicked off the 2025 Festive RIDE campaign, running until January 1, 2026. This annual initiative targets impaired driving and promotes safe, responsible choices during the holiday season.

The OPP remains committed to the Canada Road Safety Strategy 2025 through prevention, intervention, and enforcement.

Unemployment falls in November as fewer residents stay in workforce

MEDIA RELEASE

Brantford-Brant's unemployment rate fell by nearly one percentage point in November, but the decline coincided with an equal drop in the proportion of residents who were employed.

The local jobless rate dropped to 9 per cent last month, down from 9.9 per cent in October, while the employment rate declined to 61.9 per cent, according to the latest seasonally adjusted estimates from Statistics Canada. The shift reflects several thousand residents leaving the labour force.

"The decrease in the unemployment rate may appear encouraging at first glance, but the reality is more complex," said Danette Dalton, executive director of the Workforce Planning Board of Grand Erie. "The rise in the number of residents stepping out of the labour force shows the difficult circumstances many people are facing."

Statistics Canada estimates the number of Brantford-area residents not in the labour force — neither working nor looking for work — increased by about 2,400 in November, even as the area's population grew by approximately 300.

"As economic challenges continue, we are fortunate to have many organizations, known as service providers, in Grand Erie (Brantford, Brant, Six Nations, Mississauga of the Credit First Nation, Haldimand and Norfolk) working to support job seekers with career coaching, skill building, resume writing and interview preparation, and more," Dalton said.

"Online tools on the Workforce Planning Board website — www.workforceplanning-board.org — such as the Workforce Gateway and Newcomers Gateway help residents find and connect with employment service providers close to home."

Canada added 54,000 jobs in November — the third consecutive month of growth — bringing the national unemployment rate down to 6.5 per cent. Most of the job gains came from youth aged 15 to 24 in part-time positions. Ontario's unemployment rate fell to 7.3 per cent as fewer people searched for work.

Dalton said the planning board's website also hosts Grand Erie Jobs, which includes the area's most comprehensive job board, typically listing more than 1,000 positions.

"It's important that job seekers know that they aren't alone, now or at any time," she said. "There's a large network of community agencies, training providers and schools that offer so much more than job search help. They can help build someone's confidence, enhance their skills, add to their education, access job training and open up new career pathways." The Workforce Planning Board of Grand Erie is one of 26 non-profit organizations in Ontario that provide leadership in labour-force planning and is funded in part by the governments of Canada and Ontario.

GrandBridge Energy partners with IESO to bring expert support and rebates directly to homes and businesses

MEDIA RELEASE

GrandBridge Energy is pleased to announce a new partnership with Ontario's Independent Electricity System Operator (IESO) to help customers access Save on Energy conservation programs that reduce electricity use, access rebates and realize potential savings. The partnership is part of GrandBridge Energy's approved electricity Demand Side Management (eDSM) plan, which supports local marketing, customer education and business outreach in our service territory.

Through Save on Energy, eligible homeowners can receive rebates when improving home efficiency, including upgrades to insulation, windows, doors, HVAC systems, energy-efficient appliances and incentives for solar panel installation. These programs support everyday energy savings that help reduce energy consumption and save money over time.

In addition to residential rebates, Save on Energy offers an array of small business, commercial, industrial and institutional programs designed to achieve verified energy savings and improve day-to-day operations. Businesses can receive support for lighting upgrades, energy assessments, building optimization, and other solutions that lead to lower operating costs.

GrandBridge Energy will provide local support to guide customers through program requirements and application processes, making it easier to access available incentives.

"At GrandBridge Energy, our priority is helping customers lower their energy costs with solutions that make sense for their homes and businesses," said Tyler Tracey, Vice-President, Customer Experience & ITS. "Save on Energy programs offer real benefits from improved comfort at home to long-term operational savings for small and large businesses alike. Our team is ready to assist, answer questions, and help customers find the incentives that best fit their needs."

This partnership strengthens GrandBridge Energy's commitment to supporting community growth, smart energy use and guiding a sustainable future. Locally, the hydro utility services residents in the County of Brant.

For more information on available Save on Energy programs and how to apply, customers are encouraged to visit www.grandbridgeenergy.com, email saveonenergy@grandbridgeenergy.com

OH, THE PLACES WE'LL GO: A qualified “yes” on visiting two popular Toronto attractions

By Paul Knowles

Their beginnings are almost a century apart, but the Royal Ontario Museum and Ripley's Aquarium of Canada have a lot in common. They are two of the most-visited attractions in Toronto. They both are part of the Toronto CityPASS program that provides some significant discounts on admission prices. And they both offer a blend of entertainment and education to people of all ages.

So, all that being said, should you plan to brave the horrendous traffic and head to Toronto right away, to take in these two attractions? My answer would be a qualified, “yes.”

Why “qualified”? Different reasons for the two places. Let's start with the ROM. Most of us remember school trips to the ROM in decades past. After all the Royal Ontario Museum has been open since 1914, so it predates all of us.

If you are like me, your three main memories are of dinosaur skeletons, Egyptian mummies, and row after row of jam-packed cases loaded with a mind-boggling assortment of historical artifacts.

That's not the ROM of today

(PAUL KNOWLES PHOTOS)

A new, high-tech feature at the Royal Ontario Museum: a video featuring undersea creatures of the Cambrian period.

— although you can find most of these things in the museum, somewhere. The ROM is modernizing, big time. And this is actually the reason for my “qualified” yes — because the museum is smack in the middle of a three-year, multi-million-dollar revitalization of the main floor and some of the second floor. The “transformation” impacts 86,000 square feet on the main floor, and creates 6,000 square feet of new gallery space on the second floor. So lots of the building is closed to visitors.

Change is certainly in the air at the ROM, and not only concerning the physical space. After a decade in the position, Director and CEO Josh Basseches has resigned, and Yoke Chung and Jennifer Wild, already part of the museum's executive leadership team, are becoming Co-Directors and CEOs, as of January 1.

So the ROM is in transition, and visitors need to be aware of this. That does not mean there is nothing to experience here — there is still a lot of the permanent collection on display, there are new innovations to enjoy, and there are many current, temporary exhibitions, ranging from “Saints, Sinners, Lovers and Fools: 300 years of Flemish masterworks”, to “Sharks”, to a intriguing exhibition entitled “Layers in Time”, focused on southwestern Ontario's unique, meromictic lake, Crawford Lake.

And, in a slightly obvious segue, thinking of water takes us south from the ROM to Ripley's Aquarium.

It's a much newer part of the Toronto scene, having opened in 2013, 99 years after the ROM welcomed its first visitor. And while the ROM is working toward being a modern, state-of-the-art destination, Ripley's accomplished that goal from the get-go.

So why do I also give the aquarium a “qualified yes”. Here, it all depends on when you go. We visited recently, on a Saturday, and the place was jammed, wall to all with family groups. Great for the kids to be there, but a challenge to navigate. So my qualification is — Ripley's Aquarium is a terrific place to visit, but do avoid high-volume days. Ripley's recommends avoiding the hours of 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. on weekdays, and 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. on weekends and holidays. I agree!

But if you can miss the uber-crowds, there is a lot to love about the place. The moving sidewalk that carries you inside the aquarium, where you are surrounded by sharks, sea turtles, and dozens of species of fish, are amazing. The “Ray Bay” which allows visitors to actually touch a ray is magical. And while the big features draw the most attention, there are marvels in smaller exhibits as well — including sea horses and sea dragons.

Ripley's has also taken their Canadian location seriously, with really fine exhibits of Canadian species, both freshwater and ocean. Everyone loves the blue lobsters.

The attraction has, from the beginning, been over-the-top kid friendly. In fact, there are tunnels through water features, viewing areas and other nooks and crannies that are only accessible to children, which I personally think is very unfair. Heck, I'd like to crawl through a school of fish — except I would most certainly get stuck. So, let's leave it to the kids — who love it.

I mentioned the Toronto CityPASS. Here's the current math, for one adult. The CityPASS costs $129.96. (A child's pass is $92.92).

That gets you into the CN Tower, Ripley's Aquarium, and three other attractions from a list including the ROM, the Toronto Zoo, Casa Loma, and more. If you did all five, you would be paying $182 for an adult. Even visiting just three, you save money with the CityPASS.

But whether you use that pass, or simply plan a visit to one or two places, the aquarium is definitely worth a visit — away from peak hours — and the ROM, even under construction, still offers many of the wonders that we remember from when we were school kids — and promises a lot more to come.

Paul Knowles is an author and travel writer, and Past-President of the Travel Media Association of Canada. To contact Paul about travel, his books, or speaking engagements, email pknowles@golden.net.

Visitors to Ripley's are always awed by the sight of sea creatures like these rays.

HOMES OF HEROES:

If you have a story about a Paris Veteran, please email the committee at info@homesofheroes.ca. Let's work together to give all our veterans, living and fallen, in war and in peace, the recognition and honour they deserve. If you have any questions about the project, please email Neil Edwards at neiledwards51@gmail.com.

GUESS WHO?

He is a famous reindeer with a glowing red nose. He was once teased for being different. He now leads Santa's sleigh on foggy Christmas nights. 🦋🌟 Who am I?

Answer: Rudolph
